PRESS RELEASE

MAKING ART OUR BUSINESS

Scion House, on Stirling University Innovation Park, the city's premier business location, is playing host to an exhibition of stunning original artworks produced by members of Fife Dunfermline Print Workshop.

Steve Ratomski, Chair of the print workshop said: "Bringing art into the workplace is very rewarding. For the artists it means many people are seeing and hopefully, enjoying their work and for the people working here it provides them with a stimulating environment that compliments the innovative research and development work they are involved in."

"Last time the workshop had an exhibition in Stirling, it inspired local poet and writer Clive Wright to pen a new poem, so who knows what this exhibition at Scion House might inspire some of the businesses based here to do!"

The exhibition, called 'Silver', celebrates 25 years of printmaking by workshop members. It contains original artworks produced using a range of fine art printing processes - screen printing, lithography, etching, woodcut and relief. All works are for sale.

Lynn Blaikie, Operation and Business Development Manager at the Innovation Park said: "I'm delighted to have such a prestigious group of artists exhibiting here. There is a strong connection between creativity and innovation and business success.

"Scion House provides that type of dynamic environment and is a fantastic business location for research and development companies. The glass atrium where the exhibition is being held, gives a panoramic view of the iconic Wallace Monument and provides a flexible exhibition space for artists."

The exhibition is open to the public Monday to Friday 9am to 5pm from 26 August to 3 Oct. Entry is free and all work is for sale.
